

Scenario Cards

Scenario 1

Character A: You are sending a message to your friend about your party. By accident you send it to a friend who is not invited (you were only allowed to invite a very small number of people).

Character B (the invited friend): You get a text from your friend and find out that

Scenario 2

Character A: Your friend keeps texting you during a lesson at school and is getting cross that you're not answering. You want to respond to your friend but know you're not allowed your phone in class.

Character B (friend): You urgently need to tell your friend that you've got her homework

Scenario 3

Character A: During assembly, your phone vibrates in your pocket. You can see it is your mum calling; you are so worried that something could be wrong but you know you won't be able to answer her call or ring her back until break time.

Character B (mum): You are trying to ring your child to let them know that they left their bag in the car this morning. They are not picking up so you'll send a message later.

Scenario 4

Character A: You send a text to your friend, asking how they are. They just give a one-word answer, 'fine'.

Character B (friend): Your friend texted you to see if you're ok. You're in a rush and
